Display At Your Own Risk

Display At Your Own Risk

The Metadata, 2016

This publication is CC-BY-NC 4.0. As such, please cite this resource as: Display At Your Own Risk: The Metadata, in Andrea Wallace and Ronan Deazley, Display At Your Own Risk, 2016.

This Metadata book contains the Exif, XMP, and IPTC metadata extracted from the 100 digital surrogates featured in Display At Your Own Risk. In some cases, the metadata is extensive, almost overwhelming; in others, little to no metadata was embedded in the digital surrogate's file at all.

Different metadata can be created at different stages of digital asset creation and management. During the digitization of the work, digital cameras embed technical metadata called 'Exif' data into the image files (this is short for exchangeable image file format). Some Exif data is automatically generated by the camera whereas some can be preset, or overridden, by the camera operator. Once a work is digitized, additional metadata can be attached during image manipulation. Adobe Systems Inc., provides popular image editing and management software like Photoshop and Bridge, and uses an ISO data standard (originally created by Adobe) called 'XMP' (short for extensible metadata platform). Adobe's XMP labelling technology allows you to track changes and embed metadata during content creation and the editing process. Adobe platforms also enable manual metadata management. Finally, 'IPTC' metadata (short for the schema created by the International Press and Telecommunications Council) includes Core and Extension metadata and provides fields that allow users to add descriptive data such as location, dates, names, and other identifiers.

Preparing this book for Display At Your Own Risk made us realize that metadata can be beautiful. We hope you find beauty here too.

Display At Your Own Risk: An experimental exhibition of digital cultural heritage (2016)

A research-led exhibition experiment concerned with the use and reuse of digital surrogates of public domain works of art produced by cultural heritage institutions of international repute.

This publication is issued in conjunction with the exhibition Display At Your Own Risk, held at The Lighthouse in Glasgow and made available as an open source exhibition at displayatyourownrisk.org. The print exhibition is on view in Glasgow on 8 June 2016.

This research is funded by Research Councils UK, the Arts and Humanities Research Council, the Economic and Social Research Council and the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council.

The exhibition is supported in part by the National Library of Scotland, the Glasgow Print Studio and the Glasgow University Archive Services. Print services for the exhibition were provided by the National Library of Scotland and the Glasgow Print Studio; digitization services were provided by the University of Glasgow Photographic Unit within the Glasgow University Archive Services.
